The average cost of educating a boy in the Louisville public schools is $568.20, and of girl $528.04, according to the Board of Education's report made public. The question that naturally comes up is what makes the handicap of $40.16 on boys?

The bill of Representative Perry of Louisville imposing a fine for "untruthful advertising" has passed the House and is a bad bill designed to make trouble for business men. It is hard enough for newspapers to get advertising now in small towns and to handicap the advertiser with threats of prosecution if he states that he has better bargains to offer than his neighbor is a species of vicious, meddlesome legislation that should be hit on the head with a club. It will make the newspaper man's job harder and will do no one any good. What does the boy who goes to the circus care for details after he gets inside of the tent? What if the Roman chariot is a two-wheel cart and the wild man is a Mississippi negro, he has seen the show, had his fun and comes out with a grin on his face.

CLUB WORK PREPARATIONS

Mrs. Graves Will Start The Organization of Poultry Clubs Feb. 15.

NOW TAKING SPECIAL COURSE

Will Need 1,000 White Wyandotte Eggs By Early March.

Mrs. Eloise Graves, who will have charge of the Poultry Club work in Christian county after Feb. 15, is now in Nashville taking a Poultry course at Peabody College. She has been there since January 1st, intending to thoroughly inform herself by the time her active work is to begin. This course will cost her more than $100, but Mrs. Graves never does things half way and she is determined to fully qualify herself for her new duties, to be carried on in connection with her canning club work.

Names are already being enrolled and the Poultry Improvement Association will gather information as to where eggs can be obtained in large quantities by March and April. By getting White Wyandotte eggs from recognized breeders in 100 to 500 lots, it is believed they can be gotten at 50 to 75 cents a setting. Quotations of single settings at $1.00 have already been received by Agent Casey. As now planned Mrs. Graves expects to have the clubs going early in March.

Mr. Casey is getting out a letter to mail to the teachers and members are already being enrolled for the clubs. Names may be left with any member of the Poultry Association, with Mr. Casey at the H. B. M. A., or phoned to Mrs. Graves' residence number.

Mr. Casey is not to be in charge of this work, but he has already caught the poultry fever and is going to Lexington in a few days to lecture on poultry at a state meeting.

BIG FIRE SALE OF SHOES

L. R. Ashley Will Close Out His Damaged Stock at Great Bargains.

L. R. Ashley, whose shoe store was damaged by fire on January 4, has re-opened the store and after putting the stock in order is offering great bargains in a Fire Sale to begin today, January 27.

Mr. Ashley's stock was brand new and styles right up-to-date. The fire damaged some of the shoes, but others were injured by water or soiled by smoke. These have been dried out and polished and many are as good as before, but all will go at the sacrifice prices offered in this great bargain sale. It will pay you to look into this opportunity, if you need anything in the line of shoes.

Buys Muhlenberg Pool.

Greenville, Ky., Jan. 26.—W. M. Martin, a local tobaccoist, this week closed a deal with the Muhlenberg County Society of Equity by which he became the purchaser of the pooled crop of tobacco. It is estimated that there is 2,200,000 pounds of the weed in the pool and while the price will depend on the grades, there is a guaranteed price of an average of 5 cents all around. This is half a cent less than the market for last year. Deliveries will begin at once.

FROST BILL KNOCKED OUT

State Senate Votes Down Submission Act by 20 to 14.

HEATED DEBATE OF 4 HOURS

Both Platforms Had Declared in Favor of The County Unit.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26.—Gov. Stanley's administration won a signal victory yesterday when the senate, by a vote of 20 to 14, defeated the Frost bill for the submission of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. The outcome was a surprise to "dry" adherents, who had been outgeneraled by the opposition.

Action upon the measure followed a debate of more than four hours, marked by bitterness and recrimination. Nearly every senator either made a speech or gave an explanation of his vote, while some did both. Ugly words volleyed across the chamber like machine gun fire on an European battlefield.

Administration supporters denounced "dry" senators as politicians, hypocrites, agitators and bolters. Dry senators, in turn, accused the opposition of taking a stand which would wreck the party and turn Kentucky over to the republicans. They resented with heat the charge that they were "bolting" the platform pledging the party to the county unit.

When the smoke of battle had lifted, the roll call showed the following:

To Submit—Antle, Frost, Glenn, Hiles, Huntsman, Montgomery, Peak, Porter, Salmon, Sanders, Scott, Taylor and Williams—14.

Against Submission—Arnett, Booles, Brock, Clay, Combs, Helm, Hildreth, Huffaker, Knight, Lewis, Leach, Littrell, Moore, Overstreet, Raybroune, Robertson, Speer, Stricklett, Thompson and Trigg—20.

Those not voting: Ford, who is at home, ill; Senator Rogers and Senator Zimmerman.

The defeat of the measure, whose prospects seemed rosy, may be attributed to the planks in both party platforms indorsing the county unit principle. This gave the administration a whip to swing over the heads of senators who placed party regularity ahead of their personal views on the question. The result was that a number of supposedly "dry" senators, representing "dry" constituencies, voted against the bill.

Senator Frost declared that Lieutenant Governor Black, zealous prohibitionist, saved the democratic ticket from humiliating defeat.

"It is to you and to you alone," he averred, turning to the president of the senate, "that we owe democratic success last November, because it was known from one end of the state to the other that you stood for statewide legislation. Had you not been on that ticket the democratic party would have gone down into defeat at the last election by 20,000 votes."

TWO WILL COMPETE.

The oratorical contest for the championship of Western Kentucky schools will be held at Madisonville Feb. 22. So far as known, only two Hopkinsville boys will contend for the honor of representing the local High School. These are Robert Brumfield and Edward Breathitt. The date of the preliminary contest has not been announced.

This lecture will be absolutely free to everybody, as Mr. T. L. Metcalfe generously furnishes the hall, light and the heat and Mr. Leffingwell is paid by the railroad company.

He is a lecturer of wide note and is thoroughly familiar with his subject. This is not an advertisement of the railroad except that in informing people about the wonderful park it is hoped that tourists will be attracted to it. But at the same time the lecture is full of most valuable information of the most reliable sort, on the many wonders to be found there.

The Avalon, under Mr. Metcalfe's generous offer of its free use to any worthy public gathering, has become justly popular. It is now being used three nights in a week, for the night school conducted by Profs. Marion, Koffman and Edwards. The Christian County Medical Society and other bodies recognize it as their official place of meeting.

PEMBROKE STORE BROKEN OPEN

Thieves Effect Entrance by Sawing Bars in a Rear Window.

The mercantile establishment of Mr. S. A. Powell at Pembroke, was broken open Tuesday night. Entrance was effected by sawing the iron bars in a rear window. Much of the stock was scattered over the floor of the building and the indications were that considerable merchandise was taken. Blood hounds from Springfield, Tenn., were brought to Pembroke yesterday morning, in an effort to trace the guilty party or parties.

TOTAL ECLIPSE FEB. 3.

A total eclipse of the sun is scheduled to take place Feb. 3. When the moon passes between the sun and the earth on this day, a shadow 50 to 100 miles in diameter will be cast which will travel over a space 9,000 miles in length. The shadow will begin far out into the Pacific ocean, traveling in a northeasterly direction. The shadow will touch land about 200 miles south of Panama and will cross portions of Columbia and Venezuela.

In this latitude about three-tenths of the sun will be obscured. The eclipse will be visible here through smoked glasses about 9 o'clock. About this time a small portion of the sun will be touched by the moon. The eclipse will end at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Jas. M. Cayce died at his home a few miles South of town Monday night, aged 89 years. Senility was the cause, his health having been growing more feeble for some time from extreme age.

During his long life he enjoyed the respect and esteem of his neighbors and was an upright man and a consistent member of the Christian church. He is survived by his wife and two sons, J. W. Cayce and E. C. Cayce, also two step-children, R. S. Lindsay, and Mrs. Columbus Gregory.

Funeral services were held at the family residence yesterday morning by Rev. J. S. Hawkins and the burial was in the Montgomery Adams graveyard near by.

BRITISH MEET WITH DEFEAT

Driven Back From Kut-El-Amara by Turks and Three Thousand Are Killed.

TRUCE TO BURY THEIR DEAD

Vienna Declares There Has Been No Resumption of Fighting in Montenegro.

London, Jan. 26.—If reports from Turkish headquarters are exact, the British in Mesopotamia suffered a somewhat severe reverse in their endeavor to reach the besieged town of Kut-El-Amara. Twenty miles east of Kut-El-Amara the Turks drove the British several miles and the British left on the field about 3,000 dead. The Turkish losses are declared to have been comparatively slight.

It was after this fight, which lasted six hours, that General Aylmer is declared to have requested and obtained a truce of one day in order that the dead might be buried.

The British advancing from Muntefik, on the Shatt-El-Hai river, south of Kut-El-Amara toward Konra, also were compelled to retreat before a Turkish attack, says the report, leaving 100 men dead.

The British reverse at the hands of the Turks, however, is somewhat offset by the Turkish losses in battles with the Russians in the neighborhood of Erzerum. A news agency dispatch from Petrograd asserts that apart from the casualties in actual battle the Turks lost fifty officers and 4,000 men taken prisoners and also scores of machine guns and quantities of munitions captured.

Aside from the usual bombardment, mining operations and aeroplane raids, little fighting is going on in any of the other theaters of the war.

Vienna asserts that there has been no resumption of hostilities in Montenegro. The king of the Montenegrians, with his family, has arrived in Lyons, France. The disarming of the Montenegrin army, according to Austrian dispatches, is progressing without interruption and without resistance.

Allied airmen have again dropped bombs on Monastir and Givogoli, and a hundred persons are estimated to have been killed or wounded in the latter town. The Germans, on their part, have dropped explosives from aircraft on Dunkirk, where five persons were killed, and on the aerodrome at Nancy and factories in Bacarat.

While no battles of importance have been reported from the Russian front, Vienna says the Russians have shelled several sections of their line and that they are actively reconnoitering. Unofficial advices from Petrograd say the recent successes of the Russians have brought them to within less than three miles of the town of Pinsk in Volhynia.

The British military service bill is making fast progress in the house of lords after its passage by the house of commons. The upper house passed the second reading of the measure without division.

The truth about Montenegro is that there has been no peace negotiations in good faith. The royal family has escaped to Lyons, France, and at least part of the army has joined the Serbian troops in Albania. In the meanwhile, Austria has occupied the ports and is disarming the garrisons left behind.

The income tax was declared constitutional Monday by the supreme court in an unanimous decision which swept aside every contention raised against it and, in the opinion of congressional leaders, opened the way for increasing the tax rate on great fortunes to help pay for national defense. Proposals are pending in congress to tax incomes of more than $1,000,000 as high as 50 per cent. Leaders on all sides agree that out of the impetus which the decision will give such proposals, is likely to come a definite movement to levy on the revenues from great private fortunes for some of the millions the government must raise to carry out the army and navy increases.

VICK'S Group and SALVE
FOR ALL COLD TROUBLES

A FLAW IN THE PLAN

By G. F. FERRIS.

The decision to steal came to Davis as the result of months of reflection. It could not be said to be the result of impulse. There was not the slightest extenuation. Calmly and methodically Davis made up his mind to take the five or six thousand dollars' worth of bills which would pass through his hands on the following Saturday.

The money was taken out of the bank on Saturday morning and placed in the safe. During the morning Davis and Harvey, the cashier, made out the envelopes. Harvey handed Davis the bills to place in each envelope. Harvey was short-sighted, and there was a card index box between them. Nothing would be easier than for Davis to place the empty envelope in the safe and slip the bills into his pockets. The salaries would be paid between four and five. Davis' theft would remain undetected from one, when he went out to lunch, till four.

Davis was not a bad man, but his mind was warped. He believed himself to be the victim of social injustice. He had laid his plans with the utmost assurance. At one he would leave the office, at 2:30 he would sail on board the Boadicea for Buenos Aires. With the last penny of his savings he had engaged a passage for England on board the Laodicea, which left at three. He had lingered just long enough in the steamship office, and asked just enough questions to impress his identity upon the clerk, and raise a lingering interest which might, under circumstances, become an active suspicion.

Davis was twenty-nine, and he had been with the corporation seven years, waiting patiently for his chance. Cohen, the present manager, had told Davis in strict confidence that he was leaving; he had had a better offer.

"Say, Davis, know why old Krebs turned you down before?" he asked. "Spruce up, old man. Don't be a sloven. Get a fifty-dollar suit and tickle the old man's pride. And, say! Ever notice that your cuffs are frayed? Tickle the old man, make him think he's paying you fine wages, if you want to get on his right side."

Davis repulsed Cohen's confidences. He was too bitter just then to think of flattering Krebs. Besides, he had already begun to formulate his scheme.

He bought the new suit, however. That was part of the game. They chaffed him on his spruce appearance at the office on the Saturday morning, but Davis said nothing. He hung up his coat, put on the old office one, and set to work.

He was in high good-humor, and possessed by a sort of reckless audacity which made the carrying out of the plan easy. He almost laughed as he adroitly slipped the bills into his pockets under Harvey's very eyes, and placed the empty envelopes in the safe. By noon, when the cashier went out to his lunch, he had amassed nearly five thousand dollars.

He waited till Harvey returned; then he went out of the cage into the president's room.

"I am thinking of leaving you shortly, Mr. Krebs," said Davis.

"All right," said Krebs.

Davis was taken aback. Krebs had scored there. Davis stood looking at him uneasily.

"I wish I could stay, sir," he continued, "but I have the offer of a position in Cuba, to manage an estate, and it is too good to refuse."

Krebs seemed to wake up at that. His eyes began to bulge. He looked at Davis as if he wondered at the transformation in the slovenly clerk's appearance. Krebs hated losing men.

"Wait a minute!" he said. "See here, young man. If you go to Cuba you'll get malaria and yellow fever, and die. I was thinking of making you an offer. Mr. Cohen is leaving us next month. I was counting on you to fill his place. How much is your new position worth?"

"I'm not at liberty to say," said Davis. "I'm sorry, sir, that I can't reconsider the matter."

Krebs reddened and glared at him. "What do you mean, you can't reconsider?" he growled. "Mr. Cohen is getting twenty-five hundred. How would that sum appeal to you?"

"It wouldn't appeal at all," said Davis, enjoying his triumph. "You've ground me down for years and paid me a dog's wages. You are an infernal old skinflint, and I wouldn't work for you for twice that money."

Davis withdrew. He knew that Krebs would be gnawing his nails with rage that night when he discovered the amount of the loss. He had recovered his good humor by the time he was in the street. He made his way direct to the wharf, picked up his suitcase en route, and boarded the "Boadicea" five minutes before she sailed.

He stood beside the rail looking back at the receding panorama of New York. He lit a cigar.

"I'll take a deck chair, steward," he said.

"One dollar, please," said the steward.

Davis felt in his pockets. He fished up a dime and a nickel. He felt for a bill. His pockets were empty.

He had left the coat with the bills in the office, in the cashier's cage. (Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Memories of Savages.

Few scholars of our boasted civilization have memories equal to those of some savage priests who can call off the ancestors of their gods through hundreds of generations without omitting or misplacing a single name. In his complex religious ceremonials and in the arts of war and the chase the savage displays an intelligence quite equal to our own in breadth and depth, although of an entirely different kind.

PROBABLY WORK OF MANY

No One Architect Can Be Acknowledged as the Builder of the Tower of London.

Who was the original builder of the Tower of London? He is as unknown as the architect of the Tower of Babel?

Poetic license has, indeed, helped to make confusion in this respect worse confounded, for it seems satisfactorily proved that Caesar, whose name has been connected with it, had nothing whatever to do with its erection.

If there be one name that is more closely associated than another with London's most interesting landmark it is that of Bishop Gundulf, who, in 1078, was appointed by William the Conqueror overseer and surveyor to the building.

But the Tower is one of those landmarks which are essentially rather the product of successive ages than the work of one period, and it may not be generally known that its chief feature, the White tower, owes much of its present appearance to Wren, who faced its windows with stone after the Italian fashion, and thus gave it that almost modern character which it wears today.

AVIATORS TO BE TRAINED

United States War Department Offers to Teach Militia Officers at the Government's Expense.

Secretary of War Garrison has advised the Aero Club of America that militia officers may be trained in military aeronautics at the United States army aviation school at San Diego, Cal., at the expense of the war department.

There is an enormous amount of work to be done in order to develop aviation corps for the 48 states, and as the sums collected through the national aeroplane fund could be used for the general expenses of developing aviation corps in the militia, this proposal on the part of Secretary Garrison is of particular importance.

Sixteen states have become interested through the Aero club's efforts and are now ready to take up the work of developing aviation corps for the militia as soon as they can get funds for aeroplanes and for the upkeep of the corps. The states are Arizona, California, Illinois, Iowa, Florida, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

THE OLD SHOES

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR.

"I am sorry to have to ask an immense favor of you, Mary," began Joan Rice in his clumsy, but straightforward fashion.

"If it is something that pleases you,
or does you any good," brightly responded his patient, gentle-faced wife, "don't be sorry, Joan. Be glad, for I am bound to grant it."

"You dear, lovable sweetheart!" endured Joan. "I don't know how I ever came to get you—I don't deserve
you. You have been imposed upon ever since I married you. Just to think of it! I calculated that either I ought to care for the home good as long as any of them lived. You and I, now, he went out to Oregon with all his money bent on buying a big farm and moving there. You remember how he came home dazed, and telling an incoherent story of being beaten in a rough mining town out west. We could get no trace of his thirty thousand dollars he had taken with him for investments. It was gone—lost. Father died. Mother could barely enough left to support us. To relieve her you consented to take the children."

"Wanted them, you mean. I was delighted to have the dear little ones come for."

"Well, I may as well break the final news," went on Joan desperately.
"Mother's millinery venture has failed.
I can struggle on no longer and—
and I don't know where you are going?" Joan was flitting away fast as she could go.

"Where am I going?" she chirped vivaciously. "Why, to get the spare room ready and comfortable fast as I can, of course. Why, sir, do you think I am going to have honored company match me unprepared?"

"You angel!" voiced John Rice. "You have brought nothing but brightness and blessings to anyone coming near you!"

John's mother was settled in the very best room in the house. New life seemed to inspire her, with her children restored to her, and Mary's constant cheerful smile brought radiant sunshine to her drooping spirit.

Things were not going well with John. A cut in salary made him look gloomy, but Mary declared it possible to meet the grocery bill without de-riving them of enough to eat. The mother contributed a few dollars a month to the household from doing some sewing, but John was worried, or it looked vague and dark ahead.

"Then came a new surprise, and complication, and burden. The brother of Mary was crippled in an accident at the mills where he had worked. The doctor said he would be an invalid for about a year. Harry Estes could not around well enough, but he could not do the hard work his former position had required."

"Harry was cutting away a dangle
piece of a shoe sole when old Mrs.
Rice noticed the fact."

"Why, Harry, your shoes are pretty well gone up, aren't they?" she remarked.

"That for some time," Harry tried to say lightly.

"I was thinking," proceeded Mrs.
Rice reflectively. "I have some clothes and such up in the old trunk of my dead husband. Yes, and I am certain there is a pair of shoes he wore. They are not new, but certainly better than those you are wearing. If they fit you, they might do. Wait I'll go and look them up."

Mrs. Rice proceeded to the attic.
She returned shortly with the pair of shoes she had described and handed them to Harry.

"Why, they fit just famously," he declared, as he tried one on. They would do me for six months if they were patched up a little. I helped the old shoemaker on Central street carry in some leather supplies a few days since. He told me that made me a free customer in the way of repairs I might need. I'll go and see him now."

The shoemaker was true to his promise. Harry sat in his stocking feet as the artisan began work on the shoes.

The worker had found the sole of the shoe quite regular and ordinary.
When he came to the other, however, it held fast and firm and he had to dig hard to loosen two thin plates of steel. He drew them out. Between them lay a little package, done up in oilskin.

"Whoever wore these shoes used this sole for a pocketbook," observed the cobbler, as he handed the oilskin packet to Harry.

The latter unfolded it. Within rested a note! or a check! No, a certificate of deposit on an Oregon bank for thirty thousand dollars!

Harry knew enough of the history of the Rice family to read the oracle promptly. He uttered an excited yell.
Then, in his stocking feet, he made a dash for home.

The agitated Mrs. Rice insisted on going straight to the local bank to be assured the certificate was good.
There she left it for collection—"half to John and Mary," she directed.

"If we hadn't taken in the children, mother would never have come, nor the old shoes," reasoned the happy Mary. "And, oh, John, see the grand fortune that has come to us for duty well performed!"

THE LOST FISH

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Hilda unlocked the door of her little apartment and hurried to the front window. "Another one's gone," she said in bewilderment. "One goldfish disappeared yesterday, another today.
It's certainly a mystery. What kind of a place, I wonder, have I moved in to?"

Outside the window was a small iron balcony. Hilda stepped over the low window sill and found herself on the tiny shelf, from which she had a splendid view of the street. She looked down. Below her for several stories were little iron balconies similar to her own, a few of them gay with green things that the owners had put outdoors to get the first warm rays of the spring sun.

On the balcony directly beneath, between two Boston ferns, was an improvised aquarium, and in the water two goldfish were swimming.

That night she slept without fresh air from the outside, leaving only the transom open for ventilation. And in the morning another fish was gone!
She almost fainted with the shock.
Someone or something had been in her room in the night! Then her foot struck something. She picked it up.
It was a man's cuff link with a single diamond inset. She counted her money, the spoons, and felt of her few bits of jewelry and her watch. All there!
She locked the aquarium in the bathroom and went to her daily work in the city library.

That afternoon, while she was handling out books to a cosmopolitan public, a young man approached the desk.
"Will you tell me where I can find some books on zoology, please?"

Hilda looked at him with interest.
Athletic of build, good looking, and fashionably dressed, he had the air of a man who might be asking for a thesis on Sanskrit, or of anything he knew nothing at all about.

"What kind of animals?" she inquired. "Mammals, the carnivora—"
"Oh, something about fish," he answered vaguely. Goldfish. I've got some I don't know how to feed."

"It's too bad. But I have goldfish at home and when I want to know anything I go to Finney's pet store in the next square. If you go there you can get everything you want."

"Thank you very much. Good afternoon." He put on his hat to depart and, as he lifted his hand, Hilda saw a diamond-studded cuff link like the one she had found in the morning. The mystery deepened. Here was the man who had her goldfish, but why would anyone steal goldfish?

That night Hilda discovered from the janitor that her neighbor below was unmarried and went by the name of Hubert Field.

"Has he any pets or anything like that?" she inquired anxiously.

"Not that I know of. They don't allow cats and dogs in the building."

That evening, as she was trying to calm her nerves and forget the mystery by reading an interesting book, something stirred by the window, then dropped lightly to the floor behind her.
She felt rather than heard it, so faint was the sound. She was too frightened to move at first, then laughed at her fear. Slowly turning her head, she saw a little brown monkey hopping toward her on three legs. In the other paw he gripped a dripping, squirming goldfish. She sat perfectly still and the monkey, sitting on his hind legs, laid his tribute upon her knee.

The monkey was very tame and Hilda picked him up in her arms. Then she got the gold link from her dresser and descended the stairs.

As she had expected, Mr. Hubert Field was her acquaintance of the library. "Good evening," said Hilda.
"I've come to return two of your possessions, both found in my room. One explains the other, I think."

"Thank you very much. I was puzzled about the link, although I blamed Jocko for losing it. He's worried me to death since my sister left him here two days ago. He's stolen things all over the building, and I have to keep his existence a secret or they'll put us both out."

"The goldfish, I believe, belong to me. He was after another when I caught him."

"Thank heaven, I've found the owner of the fish. Fortunately, I happened to be at home when he brought them or they would have died. But he handles them carefully enough, it seems,
and I dropped them into water right away. I think I'll have to put up a notice and ask others to claim the various articles I've been the recipient of.
I've a comb, a lamb chop, a letter, a bunch of grapes, a candle shade, a silk stocking, goldfish, a box of rouge—"

Hilda laughed merrily. "I'm not guilty of the rouge I assure you."

Hubert Field looked at her fair, rosy skin and softly curling hair. "That is obvious, Miss Neighbor," he assured
her. "And now that Jocko has introduced us, may I hope that our friendship will continue?"

"I don't see why it shouldn't," said
Hilda, flushing a trifle.

TYPHOID FEVER REDUCED IN RURAL COMMUNITIES

Reduction in typhoid fever and improvement in sanitary conditions have followed the intense investigations of rural communities carried on by the United States Public Health Service in co-operation with local State health officers, according to the annual report of the Surgeon General of that Service. During past fiscal year 16,389 rural homes in eight different states were visited and many of them revisited. In each of these homes information was obtained as to the prevalence of disease and unsanitary conditions and a complete sanitary survey of the premises conducted. This was followed by reinspections to determine if remedial measures had been instituted. In but a relatively small percentage of the cases did the persons concerned, after having their attention drawn to the danger of a particular unhygienic condition, fail to inaugurate corrective measures.
Stimulus was given to the work by means of public lectures, the formation of active sanitary organizations, and the enlisting of all public spirited citizens in the campaigns for reform.
Public buildings were also inspected and local authorities given expert advice in solving such sanitary problems as the disposal of excreta, the prevention of soil pollution and the maintenance of pure water supplies.

The survey made during the year 1914 had shown that in rural communities less than one per cent of the homes had sanitary toilets and that more than fifty per cent of the people were using water from polluted sources. This condition, according to the Public Health Service, made the rural sanitation question loom up large among the matters vitally affecting the welfare of the nation. Following these studies and as a result of the interest aroused, the typhoid fever rate, an excellent indicator of the sanitary status of a community, has in some places frequently been cut to one quarter of its previous figure. In Berkeley county, West Virginia, the cases of typhoid fever were reduced from 249 to 40 in one year.
In Orange county, North Carolina, the rural sanitation campaign resulted in a reduction of the cases from 59 to 17.

The tangible results of operations in rural sanitation indicate that marked advancement in maintaining hygienic and satisfactory surroundings in country districts is possible by the application of the common principles of preventive medicine. Unsanitary conditions exist largely because they are not known to be such. Actual demonstrations for their harmfulness, together with definite recommendations for their correction, remain one of the most gratifying and successful methods for instituting reforms and has been, in the experience of the Public Health Service, invariably accompanied by definite and measurable results.

WEYLER TO HANDLE THE SPANISH ARMY

Is the Man Whose Tyranny Had Much To Do With Spanish-American War.

Paris, Jan. 26.—General Valeriano Weyler has been appointed president of a general staff of the Spanish army which has just been created by a Royal decree, according to a dispatch from Madrid to the Havas Agency.

General Weyler was governor of Cuba just before the Spanish-American war and his policy of severity in waging war on the revolutionary movement and particularly his action in forcing the concentration of the rural population in certain sections have generally been regarded as having had much to do with the bring-about of the war. After his return to Spain his reputation as an iron-handed soldier brought him appointments to positions where energy and even stern measures seemed to be required. His appointment in 1900 as captain-general of Madrid resulted in more than one ministerial crisis. He was minister of war in 1901 and again in 1905. In 1909 he was appointed captain-general of Catalonia, with headquarters at Barcelona, where the disturbances connected with the execution of the sentence of death on Francisco Ferrer were quelled by him without bloodshed.

It was recently announced that the Spanish government had decided to reorganize its entire army system and the appointment of General Weyler to the newly created position of president of a central general staff is an indication that the veteran soldier, who is in his seventy-seventh year,
continues to be a power in the military service of Spain.

In the meantime divorces had been procured and Heatherly married his

enough for all in the car to hear,
"Young man, I am drunk, but thank the Lord I'll get over it. You are a hog, and you'll never get over it."

SAVED KISS; WANTED $5,000

Woman Sues Man For Salute He Didn't Get.

A jury in the Circuit Court at Ft. Smith, Ark., found a verdict for the defendant in the suit of Mrs. Delia M. Gortz against Sam Stuart, a wealthy property owner, wherein the plaintiff sought $5,000 damages on the ground that Stuart attempted to kiss her.

Mrs. Gortz told the jury Stuart's advances caused her to lose her reason temporarily, and she further charged she suffered great physical disfigurement.

Stuart, who is seventy-one, alleged he had paid Mrs. Gortz $100 and that she signed a waiver of all damages against him. The jury deliberated several minutes and held that Stuart had paid enough.

More War Figures

The gross casualties in the war, up to the beginning of January, exceed 14,960,000, according to the computation of a prominent statistician and student of war estimates. The basis for the figures is official and other reliable information. The number of killed is estimated at one in every five and prisoners taken average one in every seven or eight.

The expert's estimate of gross casualties suffered by each warring nation follows:

Russia, 4,000,000; Germany 4,000,000,000; Austro-Hungary, 2,800,000; France, 2,300,000; Great Britain, 560,000; Italy, 300,000; Belgium, Serbia, Bulgaria and Turkey, 1,000,000.

Grand total, 14,960,000.

In the present war at least 21,000,000 are under arms.

Another source claims that the total German casualties are published in the Berlin casualty list to date, total 2,535,768. Of this number, he said, 588,896 were killed.

The War Under Secretary said the German wounded and missing numbered 1,566,549, while 356,159 had been taken prisoner. In addition 24,080 Germans had died from various causes.

"The State of Kentucky is going far enough when it provides free schools for children. Another set of schools for adult illiterates would be an expensive experiment for a State deeply in debt. Solve the problem by letting the illiterates attend the regular schools."—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

For obvious reasons adult illiterates would not attend the regular schools. It seems to be a matter of no doubt, however, that the Legislature should hesitate about appropriating any large sum of money to establish other schools. The solution of the whole matter, in our opinion, lies in making the attendance of children at school really compulsory, and keeping them at school long enough to receive some sort of training worth while. If the State takes care that the crop of illiterates shall not be increased by accessions from the present generation of children, we believe Kentucky will be doing about all that can be reasonably required.—Cynthiana Democrat.

MISS ELLA THOMAS SHOT BY HER BROTHER

Thirteen-Year-Old Boy in Jail. Girl Will Die—Her Face Torn Away by Shot.

Franklin, Ky., Jan. 26.—Miss Ella Thomas, aged 16 years, was mortally wounded this afternoon, when her 13-year-old brother, Herschel, shot her in the head with a load of buckshot. One eye is out and her face is torn away. Young Thomas was contemplating shooting a hawk when he secured the gun. His sister opened the door, and this irritated the boy, who remarked: "If you put your head in that door again, I'll shoot you." This she did, when the boy fired and wounded her. Thomas was brought to Franklin, and after an examining trial was placed in jail to await developments.

Both are children of Willis Thomas, of East Simpson.

$25,000,000 FOR BUILDING POST ROADS

Shackleford Bill Passes The House by Vote of 281 to 81--States Share.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The Shackleford good roads bill, carrying an appropriation of $25,000,000 to aid the states in improving their post roads, was passed by the house late today, 281 to 81. Three members voted "present."

States would share in the appropriation on the basis of their population and the number of their post roads. The money would be disbursed through the various state highway commissions.

Opponents of the measure insisted that this proposed appropriation would be only the forerunner to requests for others of a similar nature. Representatives from the larger cities generally opposed the project on the ground that the roads would not be a general benefit, but would go to favored sections of rural districts.

It was freely predicted that strong opposition would be encountered in the senate.

Strawberry Industry in Warren

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 26.—Work has already begun on preparations for the coming strawberry season. Hubert D. Graham has called an important meeting of the strawberry growers of the county for Saturday, January 29, at the court house at which orders for crates and other supplies will be placed. The strawberry acreage of Warren county during the 1916 season will be over 1,200 acres and some 600 new acres of strawberry land will be put under cultivation. The Warren County Strawberry Association expects the coming season to eclipse all others in the history of the association.

MORE SHEEP NEEDED

Industry Not as Attractive Here
as in Australia.Department of Agriculture Just Completed an Investigation, Results of Which Are Published in Recent Bulletin.(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)More and larger flocks of sheep are necessary to the full development of profitable agriculture in the middle and eastern states. Under present conditions sheep raising in this country has not proved as attractive as in Australia and New Zealand, and in consequence the department of agriculture has recently conducted an investigation, the results of which have just been published in Bulletin 313, into the basic principles of the industry in those countries.In New Zealand, says this bulletin, sheep raising is conducted on lines midway between those followed in our farming states and those in the range states. In Australia the sheep industry is, in the main, what would be called in America a "range proposition." With a total land area of a little more than the state of Wyoming, New Zealand has about 24,500, 000 sheep as against 4,500,000 in Wyoming. The average size of the New Zealand flock is now 1,124 and seven-eighths of the sheep are in flocks of more than 500 head each. In Wyoming the average size of the flock is nearly 3,000 head. From one to eight

Prize-Winning Leicesters.

sheep per acre are maintained in New Zealand on land which has been plowed and sown to artificial grasses.
If the land has been surface sown without plowing, this number is reduced to from one-half to two sheep per acre. Land valued as high as $150 an acre has been profitably kept in grass for grazing alone, and nearly one-half of the occupied area is used mainly for sheep. The important place thus occupied by sheep in New Zealand is declared to be evidence of the possibilities of profit from valuable land devoted to well-managed flocks. The size of these flocks insures for them an interest and care which is not so frequent in the farming states in America.In Australia conditions more nearly resemble those in the American range states. Much of the Australian land now used for sheep growing is destined to be devoted to farming, and the government is taking an active part in assisting this development. In the meantime, land is plentiful and the flocks have much space in which to run. There is, however, one fundamental and important difference between the management of the range in Australia and in the United States.
No Australian sheep owner is permitted to use the public domain without charge. On the other hand, he is in no danger of having his land grazed by other persons' flocks. Un-

Hampshire Down Shearling Ewe.

der the leasing system employed in Australia, the sheep owner secures for long periods of time, at prices varying with its value, absolute control of the land he uses. When the government is ready to resume the land in order to divide it into smaller allotments, the sheep owner is recompensed for whatever improvements he may have made, and is, in addition, permitted to retain his own central homestead. In the opinion of the Australians the additional security and the permanence of the business more than compensate for the rent paid to the state. In America, stockmen themselves are inclined toward this point of view, as some means of controlling and improving the public grazing lands is believed to be urgently needed.In another important respect, sheep-raising in Australia differs from that on the American range. In Australia the flocks are not kept collected andunder the care of herders, but are fenced into "paddocks" which vary from 5,000 to 10,000 acres in size. Here they are left to run at will under practically natural conditions. In many cases they are only rounded up once a year for shearing. Even at lambing time there is little necessity for attention. This plan not only lessens labor—a difficult problem in all parts of Australia—but puts the sheep into better condition than when they are in charge of even the best herders.
On the other hand, the fencing of the sheep run is, of course, an added expense, but this is considered as less important than the advantages already named.The greatest difference of all, however, between the American and Australian sheep industries is probably to be found in the handling of the wool after it has been shorn. In Australia and New Zealand the wool almost invariably remains the property of the grower until it is sold to the manufacturer. Under this system the cost of actually shearing the sheep is only about one-half of the amount which the grower expends in preparing his wool for market. He himself divides the clip into various lots, and the grading is done with uniformity and exactness. Overclassing, however, is avoided. In one Queensland shed 10,000 two-year-old wethers were shorn and the clip divided into 11 classes. In a New South Wales flock of 7,000 head composed of ewes, yearling ewes and rams, 28 classes were made, but this is probably an instance of overclassing.Despite the expense that this practice involves, the Australian is firmly convinced that he realizes more for his wool by selling it in such a number of distinct lots that the manufacturer can find exactly the kind of wool he needs for a particular fabric and can buy that wool alone. An additional advantage is the opportunity that this system allows of enabling the grower to determine the profit that he makes from each particular type of sheep and wool.

YOUNG STEERS FOR FEEDING

Two-Year-Olds Make Best Feeders for Average Farmer—Neighbors Ought to Work Together.It is highly important that the young steers selected for feeding are of the right sort. With the present prices of feedstuffs and labor, economy is necessary to eliminate loss and waste if the feeding operations are to be profitable.Scrub feeding cattle are rapidly becoming a thing of the past. It is money out of the pocket to put good feed into a "robber" steer. The present demand is for feeds of high quality. A steer with a low, blocky, wide back, with a broad muzzle and short head, with a large roomy middle, showing ample room for consumption of large quantities of food and with fine thick soft hair has every indication of being a profitable feeder.Two-year-olds make the best feeders for the average farmer. Such cattle can seldom be beaten when it comes to rapid and economical profits.
Three-year-olds, provided they be purchased reasonably, are sometimes used to advantage but as a rule two-year-olds make more rapid gains than do the older ones. In selecting feeding steers it should be kept in mind that a uniform lot of cattle always takes the eye of the buyer and sells at a fancy price. Thus, you see the necessity of feeding steers of like shape, color and breed. To secure this kind of steers purebred beef males should be used. Neighbors in a corn, beef and hog district ought to co-operate and follow similar lines, if best results are to be secured.After selecting the right sort of steers for feeding purposes the next point is, to feed them off as quickly as possible.

TO PURIFY DRINKING WATER

More or Less Danger from Typhoid Fever and Dysentery in Using Water From Ditches.(By W. G. SOCKETT, Colorado Experiment Station.)Wherever ditch water is used for drinking purposes its use is always attended with more or less danger from typhoid fever and dysentery. This risk can be considerably reduced by treating the water with hypochlorite of lime or bleaching powder, which can be purchased in one-pound sealed packages from any drug store for about 25 cents per pound. Water in cisterns may be treated as follows:For 5,000 gallons place one ounce of the bleaching powder (so-called "chlo-ride of lime") in a vessel containing approximately two gallons of water; stir rapidly for about one minute; allow it to stand for five minutes so that the insoluble part of the lime will settle to the bottom; pour the solution into the cistern containing the ditch water, and by means of a long paddle stir vigorously so as to mix the hypochlorite of lime thoroughly with the water. After 30 minutes the water may be used.

Production of Corn.

About one-fifth of the farm land in this country is planted to corn each year and the United States produces twice as much corn as all other countries put together.

Good Milk Strainer.

ACCOUNTING FOR SALT LAKE

Fact That Well-Known Body of Water Has No Outlet Is Reason Why It Is Saline.

Great Salt Lake has no outlet. Jordan river, which enters it from the south, is the outlet of Utah lake. Bear river, coming from the north, carries the outflow from Bear lake. The waters of Utah and Bear lakes and of Jordan and Bear river are fresh, and so is the water of Weber river, the third great tributary of Great Salt lake, but the lake into which the three rivers flow is saline. It is saline because it has no outlet.

The fresh waters of the rivers contain some saline matter, but the quantity is too small to be discovered by taste.

As stated by the chemist, in parts per million, the quantity seems minute, but when account is taken of the total volume of water brought by the streams to the lake in a year their burden of saline matter is found to be really great, amounting annually to more than five hundred thousand tons.

Year by year and century by century the water which they pour into the lake is evaporated, but the dissolved solids cannot escape in that way and therefore remain.

They have accumulated until the lake water is approximately saturated, holding nearly as much mineral matter as it can retain in solution. The lake contains over five billion tons of common salt and nine hundred million tons of Glauber salt (sodium sulphate) as well as other mineral matter.

SPEAKING WHAT ONE THINKS

Only Those of Vacillating Mind Find Comfort in Assuming the Cover of the Anonymous.

It is easy enough to be advised, "Speak what you think now in hard words, and tomorrow speak what tomorrow thinks in hard words again."

To the visionary and the recluse this may be easy, but those of us who live close to our kind, who take color from them, who can never do anything without being conscious of an effect upon them which reacts in turn upon us—such vacillating and feeble chameleon folk as these love to run to the cover of the anonymous.

They wrap themselves snugly in its mantle and mask, and then—ah, then—they step out at ease, they hold the head high, they begin to say, "I think," instead of "It is sometimes thought," and "I doubt," instead of "It appears doubtful."

Ideas come to them with a rush. They have so much to say, now that the saying does not commit them to anything in particular. They can confess their souls without being taken too seriously.

WHERE DRUGGIST WINS.

"Is there any profit in selling postage stamps?" inquired the man in search of information.

"Not directly," replied the druggist, "but it gets people into the habit of going to the drug store, and after that it doesn't take long to make chronic invalids of them."—Kansas City Star.

BODY BLOW.

"I have all the gems of literature in my library."

"Then I'll bet a cool hundred they are uncut gems."

SOME DECLINE.

Optimist—Greece? Why, Greece produced a Homer!

Pessimist—And today it couldn't produce a base on balls.

HIS IDEA.

"Professor, do you think my technique is getting better?"

"Yes, but it isn't quite convalescent yet."

MISUNDERSTOOD HIM.

Soldier—Yes; I have participated in thirteen engagements.

Widow—Indeed! And are you still a bachelor?

SHE KNEW.

"Say, mamma, what is 'frenzied finance'?"

"Just watch your father figuring up my dress and hat bills."

THE PROPER THING.

"What do you do when your best girl expresses a wish?"

"Why, I pay the express charges, of course."

KING HAS LONG PEDIGREE

British Monarch Can Trace His Ancestors Back for More Than Eight Hundred Years.

The father of the present king was Edward VII, the oldest son of the late Queen Victoria, who was the niece of William IV, who was the brother of George IV, who was the son of George III, who was the grandson of George II, who was the son of George I, who was the cousin of Queen Anne, who was the sister-in-law of William II, who was the son-in-law of James II, who was the brother of Charles II, who was the son of Charles I, who was the son of James I, who was the cousin of Elizabeth, who was the sister of Mary, who was the sister of Edward VI, who was the son of Henry VIII, who was the son of Henry VII, who was the cousin of Richard III, who was the uncle of Edward V, who was the cousin of Richard II, who was the grandson of Edward II, who was the son of Edward I, who was the son of Henry III, who was the son of John, who was the brother of Richard I, who was the son of Henry II, who was the cousin of Stephen, who was the cousin of Henry I, who was the brother of William Rufus, who was the son of William the Conqueror.

Thus, says the Philadelphia Press, King George can trace his ancestors back for more than 800 years.

"OFF HIS NUT!"

BOON FOR "NIGHT HAWKS."

The police commissioner has a soft spot in his heart for the night workers and for those who do not go to bed until the milkman comes around. He proved it by issuing a special order, writes the New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, to compel cops to see that there will in future be no unnecessary shouting by street hawkers and "old clothes" men; no unnecessary shouting or yelling by anyone on the streets; no use of horns, bugles or bells by scissors grinders; no unmuffled exhausts on automobiles or motorcycles; no unnecessary noises by milkmen, ice men and bakery boys; no unnecessary noises by janitors in putting out ash cans; no unnecessary blowing of factory whistles and no barking dogs or yowling cats. And, further, the cops will report to the public service commission faulty car tracks, flat wheels on cars, faulty brakes on cars and unnecessary clanging of car gongs. If all these things are enforced New Yorkers will never wake up.

STRONG CHARACTER.

"Does your father look with favor on me as a prospective son-in-law?"

"I'm afraid not."

"What makes you think so?"

"The way he talks."

"Well, what does he say?"

"Whenever your name is mentioned he says he's met with a great deal of trouble in this world, but probably has strength enough left to weather one more misfortune."

HASTY CONCLUSION.

"What's this trouble in the ranks of the Boy Scouts?"

"So far as I can judge," replied the sarcastic observer, "one faction wants to make men out of them and the other wants them to continue picking violets."

TO CUT OUT THE LOSSES.

Wife—One afternoon I win at bridge and the next I lose.

Hub—Then why not play every other afternoon?

GETTING HIS DESERTS.

"Oh, Robert, there's a burglar breaking into the garage."

"Hush! If he steals that second hand car it'll serve him right."

HAMLETT AND LEWIS SEEK BALLOT RECOUNT

Want 501 Boxes Opened in Secretary of State Races.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26.—Pleadings in the contest suit over the office of Secretary of State would open 501 ballot boxes in thirty-three counties. Barksdale Hamlett, in his petition contesting the election of James P. Lewis, claims fraud or error in 277 precincts in 20 counties and Lewis in his answer filed in the Franklin circuit court yesterday questions returns from 24 precincts in 13 counties, including Jefferson, Franklin, Fayette, Scott, Bourbon, Pike, Ohio, Calloway, Floyd, Knott, Hart, Breathitt and Metcalfe.

Hamlett's petition goes into Leslie, Elliott, Menifee, Pulaski, Caldwell, Lyon, Taylor, Perry, Campbell, Clinton, Wayne, Rockcastle, Lawrence, Muhlenberg, Estill, Carter, Gallatin, Lewis, Whitley and Harlan.

Lewis won by 115 votes on the official count. Hamlett claims that 3,000 were counted for Lewis which should have been counted for him in the 277 precincts; and Lewis by counter claim asserts that a recount in these precincts will increase his lead.

Lewis raises the question of the legality of ballots where the election officers did not require the voter to show his election certificate.

In Same Grave.

Priesley Spencer, 83, weighing 300 pounds, died on Sunday evening at 5 o'clock at his home near Allen Springs, Warren county, and his wife, Mrs. Ellie Spencer, 800 weighing 100, died this morning at 7:30 o'clock. Both died of pneumonia, the husband being ill six days and the wife four. They would have celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary in March if they had lived. The funeral services will be conducted on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from Mt. Union Baptist church, of which they had been members for over half a century. They will be buried in the same grave.

New Bowling Green Pastor.

Rev. Finley F. Gibson, of Ft. Smith, Ark., has accepted the pastorate of the Bowling Green Baptist church, and will begin March 5. He was a classmate of the retiring pastor, Dr. L. W. Doolan.

It is said that a committee from the Dallas congregation visited Dr. Gibson at Fort Smith two weeks ago, spending the day with him, and offered him a salary which is double the one which he will receive, an assistant pastor, private secretary, three-story parsonage and an automobile, but he said that the Lord had sent him to Bowling Green. He stipulated that he is not to teach a Sunday School class, saying he wanted to go from his knees to his pulpit.

Republican Senator Dead.

Rev. Jas. E. Stewart, Republican State Senator from Rowan and other counties, died at Frankfort after an illness of some time. He had filled the office of county judge and other positions in his county.

LAURANT HONORED

Presented With Medal at Chicago May 3, 1912, by The Chicago Magicians' Club.

* "The Phantom Bride" in Laurant's Musical and Magical Fantasia

For the wonderful work which he has accomplished in raising the art of magic to a higher plane Eugene Laurant, the magician who is to appear here Jan. 28, has received the highest honors that could be bestowed upon an artist in his chosen line, that of having been presented with two beautiful medals by his fellow magicians and admirers. One of these was presented in New York and the other in Chicago. Not only does Laurant at least equal the older masters in the wonder of his feats, but his manner excels theirs. There is little of the forced and unnatural in the way he does things. A certain ingenuity about his manner is most convincing, and the wit-ness of the performance does not realize that it's an illusion till it is actually accomplished.

BETHEL COLLEGE NORMAL COURSE

Special Plans For Teachers
 Beginning on February 8th.

Bethel Female College is arranging a fine normal course for teachers, to begin the 8th of Feb., and last for fifteen weeks, to the end of the session.

Already a number of the teachers of the county have engaged rooms at the College, and the course promises to be a great success. Special courses have also been arranged for those preparing to take the teachers' examination in May. President Peterson wants to get in touch with all of those interested in this work.

Accommodations are being arranged for twenty.

The cost for the course will be low and the work will be equal to the best.

Prof. Foster has endorsed this course and will give credit to all of those who avail themselves of this opportunity. Get in touch with President Peterson at once if you are interested in taking professional training.

Edith Cavell's Statue.

Paris, Jan. 26.—The site has been chosen for the statue to be erected in commemoration of Edith Cavell, the British nurse who was executed in Belgium. The statue will be erected at the Tuileries Garden, at the angle fronting Rue de Rivoli and Place de la Concorde, one of the spots most familiar to Parisians and tourists.

Famous Eulogy of a Dog.

(By Senator George G. Vest, of Missouri.)

Gentlemen of the jury: The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care, may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog.

Gentlemen of the jury: A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he can be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer, he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth, an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies; and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his grave side will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death.

Permitted to Marry.

Alexandria, Ky., Jan. 26.—R. G. Gifford, 28, serving a term for forgery, Monday was allowed to wed Miss Augusta Wunderlich, 26. Both live in Cincinnati. The wedding was witnessed by an immense throng. Gifford will be given his freedom next April.

VICTORY FOR LOUISVILLE WON IN THE COURTS

City Will Collect Back Taxes to Amount of $192,000—Largest Suit of Kind Won.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26.—The court of appeals handed down a decision affirming the case of Ewald, administrator, against the city of Louisville, as previously decided by Judge Kirby, the verdict meaning a victory for the city of Louisville in back taxes to the amount of $192,000. The collection is probably the largest ever made by the city of Louisville in a back tax suit.

To Increase Middies.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The administration bill to increase the number of midshipmen at the Annapolis Naval academy was ordered favorably reported by the house military committee by a vote of 15 to 4. The four negative votes were by Representative Tribble, Georgia; Hensley, Missouri; Calloway, Texas, and Buchanan, Illinois.

The bill increases to three the number of appointments to the academy allotted annually to each senator, representative and delegate in congress, instead of two. It is estimated that the plan would increase by 500 appointments authorized to be made annually. It entails an extra expense of 180,000 annually.
